Local music fest conditional permit tabled until Sept. 9

By MARK CAMPBELL
Courier staff writer

A local music festival was postponed — and possibly canceled — when organizers asked that their request for a conditional use permit be tabled by the Madison Zoning Board Monday night after more than a dozen residents and property owners near the festival venue, as well as local police and firefighters, expressed concerns that could not be resolved during more than two hours of discussion at City Hall.

Organizers Kyle McClanahan and Jason Abbott said they were trying to go through proper channels and obtain all required permits to hold KADFEST 2019, a rock music festival with beer, food, camping and RVs, after quickly staging the event last year when flooding postponed the festival in Louisville, and it was quickly moved to a farm off North K Road near Madison.

About 500 people attended the impromptu event in 2018 and up to 1,500 are expected this year. The event was originally scheduled for Aug. 8-11 but organizers are now looking at dates in September or October if they can bring their request back before the board. On Monday, organizers asked that the request be tabled until Sept. 9 after Board chairman Bob Courtney essentially told them that might be their best option to not have the event permit denied outright.

Courtney and several of the board members said the number of questions and concerns raised during the meeting would make it difficult for the board to grant approval at this time and if the board denied the request it would be months before the organization could put the issue back before the board.

"We're lacking information and want to get it right for you and for the people who live out there," Courtney said.

"We'll table it," said McClanahan.

The group then posted the following message to its fans and followers on Facebook:

"It is with our deepest regards, that we have to announce that KADFEST

50 YEARS OF SERVICE HONORED

Lonnie Mason smiles as he listens to friends and colleagues compliment his 50 years of service in Purdue Extension Service. See story, Page A6.

The Jefferson County 4-H Fair board took a few moments Thursday to note to Lonnie Mason, the county extension director, that in 1969 Neil Armstrong walked on the moon, women were allowed membership in Future Farmers of America, and Elvis, the Beatles, Johnny Cash, John Denver, Simon and Garfunkel, and Elton John were musical giants.

But, they said, the "most notable to us and our 4-H program is that it was your first 4-H fair. Thank you so much for everything you have put into the 4-H program and for all of the lives you have touched these past 50 years."

Lonnie, as he is called by everyone, is a tough guy to keep a secret from and an even tougher guy to put in the spotlight. As someone said during Thursday's surprise pitch-in lunch in the livestock arena, he's quiet but he's always there when you need him.

But, put him in the spotlight they did, along with providing an opportunity for Mason and his multitude of friends and colleagues to recall the years he has served this and other counties and fondly remember the accomplishments. Mason's family of sisters, brothers-in-law and a brother, aunt, cousins and a nephew came to the fair to join in the special event.

With hand-made tributes, cakes and surprise gifts, the crowd recognized Mason's 50 years of service, which has been continuously in Jefferson County since 1984.

Don Phillips of Hilliard Lyons noted that Mason has been active in the community beyond 4-H and county extension.

"Lonnie is like the 'engine' of your car," he said. "He works behind the scenes where most people don't see his efforts. He gets things done without recognition. "He is a great 'worker bee."

With characteristic humility and few words, Mason repeatedly thanked the crowd and the community.

"It's been good," he said.

The Mason family turned out to surprise the honored guest. 17 shell casings found in AK-47 firing in an alley

By MARK CAMPBELL
Courier staff writer

A man and a woman have been charged in connection with the firing of what police described as an assault weapon in downtown Madison shortly after midnight on Friday, July 5.

The incident stems from the discharge of an AK-47 into the air on Hentz Lane after Madison Patrolman Brian Ashcraft was responding to what sounded like rapid gunfire in the area of the 100 block of East Main Street at approximately 12:03 a.m. Upon arriving at the scene, Ashcraft allegedly observed Todd A. Miller fire a second round of gunfire into the air on Hentz Lane.

Ashcraft exited his patrol car with his sidearm drawn and said in an affidavit he had to order Miller, 56, four or five times to place the gun on the ground before Miller complied. He then ordered Miller, 118 E. Main St., Madison, and a woman who was in the area — Siera N. Uliasz, 32, 11706 Longwood Garden Way, Houston — to both step away from the gun and get on the ground.

Ashcraft said both failed to comply but Miller eventually moved away from the rifle and was taken to the ground quickly. After placing Miller in handcuffs, Ashcraft then took Uliasz into custody. The officer said both suspects were visibly intoxicated and an odor of alcohol was detected. Miller refused a portable alcohol breath test at the Jefferson County Jail but Uliasz blew a .161 — more than double the amount considered legally intoxicated.

A total of 17 spent shell casings were recovered in the area of Hentz Lane where Ashcraft observed Miller fire the rifle as well as 118 E. Main St. Bullet holes were also observed in the guttering of a building next to where Miller fired the weapon. Miller was charged with criminal recklessness, a Level 6 felony, in connection with the firing of the rifle and disorderly conduct, public intoxication and resisting a law enforcement officer, all Class B misdemeanors, while Uliasz was charged with disorderly conduct for "intentionally making unreasonable noise and continuing to do so after being asked to stop" and public intoxication, both Class B misdemeanors.

Madison offers final resting place to a Vietnam veteran

By MARK CAMPBELL
Courier staff writer

An Indiana man with little family and apparently few friends served his country during the Vietnam War and lived out his 62 years in Greencastle, Indiana, but he will spend eternity in Jefferson County.

U.S. Army Spc. Larry W. Miller died May 30 at The Waters of Greencastle nursing home where he was cared for by the Hospice Heart to Heart organization over the past year. Now, weeks later, he will be laid to rest on hallowed ground on Madison's hilltop.

While at The Waters, Miller had few visitors, mainly a friend from Greencastle, and no immediate family. So when he is memorialized and buried Tuesday at the Indiana Veterans Cemetery in Madison, cemetery officials and the local mortuary assisting with the funeral hope Miller's fellow veterans and others kind enough to honor his memory will attend the service and show him the respect anyone who has served his country deserves.

"He served his stint in the Army during Vietnam and then got out," cemetery superintendent Alan Burnham said Friday, noting that while Miller wasn't awarded any medals or special recognitions he is still a veteran and will receive full military honors by the Major Samuel Woodfill American Legion Post No. 9 Honor Guard. "He's a veteran. We just would like to have as many vets as we could get so he doesn't have to go out alone."

The staff at The Waters said Miller was a quiet resident who didn't talk a lot and the only family listed for him was a nephew living far away who was not involved in his care.

"He was a proud veteran. He only had a few visitors — mainly just one lady who would visit from time to time," a Waters staff member said. "He was very quiet and we just don't know much about him."

That lady who would visit is Loretta Kirch, a 48-year-old cancer survivor who met Miller when he befriended her 25 years ago as she was recovering from brain surgery. Miller drove Kirch to and from medical appointments and they became friends. She later reciprocated for Miller and he eventually asked Kirch to help with his end-of-life decisions.

Kirch said Miller was born in Indianapolis but went into foster care at age 3 and lived there until he enlisted in the Army. After being honorably discharged, Miller spent time in Texas

Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS — The latest round of federal airport infrastructure grants to Indiana include $1.47 million to Shelbyville Municipal Airport to rehabilitate a runway and more than $1.1 million to Elkhart Municipal Airport to install a perimeter fence. The Federal Aviation Administration this week announced a total of $477 million in infrastructure grants nationwide, including more than $4.9 million for Indiana. The Indiana grant awards also include $750,000 to Marion Municipal Airport to build a taxiway, $464,000 to Indianapolis International Airport to rehabilitate taxiway lighting, $150,000 to Crawfordsville Regional Airport to build a terminal building, $150,000 to Kendallville Municipal Airport to build a building, and $144,000 to North Vernon Airport to build a taxiway. Madison Municipal Airport received a $1 million grant in the previous round of announcements.

Duo accused of trying to help Islamic State

INDIANAPOLIS — A federal grand jury has indicted two brothers from Fishers for allegedly attempting to provide guns and other support to the Islamic State. The Justice Department said Thursday that 21-year-old Moyad Dannon and 20-year-old Mahde Dannon also are charged with various firearms offenses. It says between July and December 2018, the brothers sold several illegally obtained firearms to a person working with the FBI and began to make untraceable "ghost guns" by purchasing unmarked firearms parts online and assembling them into functional .223 caliber, semi-automatic rifles, which they sold to an undercover FBI agent. Prosecutors say the brothers believed the weapons were destined for the Islamic State. Moyad Dannon's attorney says he looks forward to seeing the government's evidence. A message was left for Mahde Dannon's attorney.

Duke Energy to build solar plant near Purdue

WEST LAFAYETTE — Duke Energy says it will build a 1.6-megawatt solar power plant in the Discovery Park District near Purdue University's main campus in West Lafayette. Duke said Thursday it will lease about 10 acres from the Purdue Research Foundation for the project it calls the Tippecanoe County Solar Power Plant. Duke and the foundation say the solar power plant will generate enough electricity to power about 240 average homes. The plant with about 7,000 solar panels will be built this summer and is expected to start providing power later this year.

Inmate captured after escape from prison

MICHIGAN CITY — State correction officials say an inmate who escaped Wednesday from the grounds of the Indiana State Prison has been captured. The Indiana Department of Correction says 39-year-old Travis Hornett was apprehended without incident shortly after midnight Thursday by DOC staff and state and local police in a vacant home in Beverly Shores, Indiana. That community along Lake Michigan is adjacent to Michigan City, where Hornett escaped Wednesday afternoon while on a work detail on the prison's grounds about 50 miles east of Chicago. The DOC says the Waterloo, Indiana, man had forced his way into the vacant home and surrendered without resistance. The state agency says Hornett, who was serving a sentence on a burglary conviction, is now expected to face felony charges of escape and residential entry.

Man's remain found in suitcase were strangled

INDIANAPOLIS — The Marion County coroner says an autopsy shows that a man was strangled before his remains were stuffed into a suitcase and left alongside a creek. WRTV-TV reported Thursday that the Indianapolis Metropolitan Police Department is investigating the death of 56-year-old Larry Terry as a homicide. There have been no arrests. Police have said several people were walking along Bean Creek on the city's southeast side May 27 when they found the suitcase, about 2½ miles from Terry's home. Police say a relative had reported Terry missing on March 12.

Man charged in co-worker's shooting

JEFFERSONVILLE — A teenager has been charged with murder in a tire shop shooting that left a fellow employee dead following an argument. Jeffersonville Police Lt. Isaac Parker says 19-year-old Bobby Powell was arrested soon after the shooting Tuesday morning at Big O Tires. He was in custody. It wasn't clear whether he has an attorney who can comment on his behalf. Police say the victim was taken to a hospital in nearby Louisville, Kentucky, and died there. His name hasn't been released. Parker says customers were in the business at the time of the shooting. Police described the shooting as an isolated act of workplace violence.

STATE BRIEFS

Carjacking suspect hits cruiser, kills police dog

LARWILL — State police say a Whitley County police dog died after an officer's cruiser was involved in a fiery collision with a car driven by a carjacking suspect. Indiana State Police say a Whitley County sheriff's deputy was sitting in his cruiser after setting up stop sticks along an U.S. 30 intersection Wednesday afternoon when the suspect's car collided broadside with his cruiser while trying to avoid the sticks. The impact caused the cruiser to burst into flames. The deputy escaped unharmed, but officers were unable to get the police dog out of the cruiser and the canine died at the scene near the town of Larwill, about 20 miles west of Fort Wayne. The carjacking suspect received minor injuries and was treated at a local hospital.

Fed approves $9M for Gallatin airport

FRANKFORT — Two general aviation airports — one near Kentucky Speedway in Sparta, Kentucky — have been awarded grants totaling nearly $11 million as part of funding announced by the U.S. Transportation Department. The Kentucky Transportation Cabinet says the Gallatin Airport in Sparta will receive $9 million to invest in grading and drainage work needed to build a new general aviation airport. The state had promised the airport as part of the incentive package approved when the speedway announced plans to locate at the rural site off Interstate 71 back in the late 1990s. Construction at the Gallatin airport is expected to start this fall. The finished project will include a 5,500-foot runway, full-length parallel taxiway, a terminal building, fuel system and corporate and conventional T-hangars. The London-Corbin Airport in London will receive $1.85 million for necessary runway reconstruction. The cabinet says general aviation airports serve private aircraft and aren't used for commercial passenger flights. At the London-Corbin Airport, funding will rebuild the existing 6,000-foot runway.

Democrats' pension fix seeks bipartisanship

FRANKFORT — Democratic leaders in the Kentucky House are making a play for bipartisanship with new state pension repair proposals. House Minority Leader Rocky Adkins said Thursday that Democrats are acting "in good faith" with two proposals to try "to work a way forward." Adkins says leaders in the Republican-led House, including Speaker David Osborne, have met with Democrats to discuss the proposals. He says no commitments have been made. Republicans hold a supermajority in both the House and Senate, meaning they don't need Democratic votes. But Kentucky Republican Gov. Matt Bevin has struggled to cobble together support for his pension repair proposal that would replace a Republican-approved bill that Bevin vetoed in April. Bevin has yet to call a special session to put forth his plan. "We have reached out across the aisle to our Republican counterparts and to the governor to share our ideas, and we have communicated with the stakeholders as well," Adkins said. "We believe these plans provide the certainty and stability the agencies absolutely must have." Both bills put forth by Democrats would freeze retirement payments that are paid by quasi-governmental agencies and redirect excess retiree health insurance payments for five years to pension liabilities. Democrats say that would be paid back after the five years by higher annual payments to the retiree health insurance fund.

Remains confirmed as missing woman

LANCASTER — The remains of a woman who disappeared six months ago were found buried near a house, Kentucky State Police said Thursday. Trooper Robert Purdy confirmed the remains found Wednesday night were those of Savannah Spurlock, 23, who was last seen in January leaving a Lexington bar with several men. David Sparks, 23, of Lancaster, was taken into custody shortly before 2 a.m. Thursday and charged with evidence tampering and corpse abuse. The property where the remains were found belongs to a relative of Sparks. Police did not directly tie Sparks' arrest to Spurlock, but news outlets reported the property had been searched previously in connection with her disappearance. Purdy declined to say whether additional charges were expected. Purdy said at a news conference Thursday in Richmond that the cause of death wasn't available yet.

Man shot self while trying to flee police

LEXINGTON — A federal agent says in a court affidavit that a man accidentally shot himself in the leg while fleeing police. News outlets report the affidavit by a special agent with the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives says the man ran during a traffic stop in Lexington. A Lexington police officer began chasing him, and police say shots were fired. The affidavit says the man shot himself in the thigh while trying to pull a gun. The record says the officer fired but that it's believed his rounds missed the man. The officer was responding to a report of a burglary Wednesday evening. Kentucky State Police are investigating. State police said the man has been released from the hospital and is in custody on a federal charge of being a felon in possession of a handgun.

Kitten OK after rescue from car's subframe

FRANKFORT — A 9-week-old kitten survived a 30-mile trip trapped in the frame of a car. Auto repair shop owner Scott Bourne says the driver heard a noise coming from under his car when he left Lexington on Wednesday morning but didn't know what it was. Later that day, the driver stopped at a Hardee's in Frankfort and found the kitten. Bourne's repair shop, Midas of Frankfort, is next door to the Hardee's. Bourne says technicians had to drop out the subframe, and took about 20 minutes using soap to free the kitten. He named her Marigold, a variation of the name given to King Midas' daughter in a book by Nathaniel Hawthorne. A veterinarian says Marigold is healthy. A longtime customer of Bourne's has volunteered to adopt her.

Jim Beam to be fined for bourbon fire, fish killed in river

VERSAILLES, Ky. (AP) — Authorities say Jim Beam will be fined for last week's warehouse fire that contaminated nearby waters with bourbon and killed fish that continued on down the Kentucky and Ohio rivers over the next several days.

Kentucky's Energy and Environment Cabinet spokesman John Mura confirmed there will be a penalty. He said the state Department of Fish & Wildlife may also fine the company. The cost of the fines was unclear as of Wednesday.

A lightning strike set the Woodford County warehouse on fire on July 2 and destroyed the warehouse and about 45,000 barrels of bourbon. The site burned for days as firefighters allowed the blaze to consume as much of the alcohol as possible but the runoff, containing alcohol and firefighting chemicals, removed oxygen from the water and killed fish and other water animals, as it flowed into nearby Glens Creek and then into the Kentucky River and on to the Ohio River at Carrollton, Kentucky.

The cabinet said the nearly 23-mile alcohol plume, deadly to many fish in the Kentucky River, would eventually dissipate in the bigger and faster moving Ohio River. However, fish carcasses could be seen as far downstream as Milton, Kentucky, by Monday evening.

Jim Beam and environmental officials used equipment to restore oxygen to the water in an attempt to minimize the number of fish killed.

Mura said the cabinet plans to issue Jim Beam, owned by Beam Suntory of Osaka, Japan, a notice of violation that could lead to a fine.

Indiana's state budget reserve jumps to $2.3 billion

By TOM DAVIES
Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — Indiana's state cash reserves grew faster than expected over the past year, to nearly $2.3 billion, and the governor is proposing to spend some of that money on several planned construction projects.

State budget officials announced Thursday that Indiana closed the 2019 fiscal year ending June 30 with $485 million more in reserves than a year ago — and about $200 million more than officials anticipated in April. Much of that is attributed to a jump of $835 million, or 5.4%, in state tax revenue from last year.

Republican Gov. Eric Holcomb is recommending that $300 million go toward projects, including $78 million of upgrades eliminating traffic signals and railroad crossings on U.S. 31 in northern Indiana.

Others involve construction of a new veterinary hospital at Purdue University and building projects at the Indiana State Fairgrounds, Ball State University and Ivy Tech State College in Columbus. Office of Management and Budget Director Cristopher Johnston, Holcomb's top fiscal adviser, said that would avoid possibly $100 million in interest costs from borrowing money for the projects, which legislators approved earlier this year.

Republican House and Senate leaders issued statements supporting the plan, which would need legislative approval during next year's session.

Holcomb and Republican legislators made preserving a sizable cash reserve a priority in developing the new two-year state budget adopted in April. They aimed to keep a $2 billion reserve, or about 11.5% of expected state spending. They argue that would protect the state in case of an economic recession and maintain its top-level AAA credit rating.

The 2019 budget year ended with a 13.9% reserve, which would drop to about 12.1% with Holcomb's spending proposal.

Democrats faulted Holcomb and the GOP-dominated Legislature for earlier projecting revenue drops and not directing more money toward needs such as increasing teacher pay, expanding the state-funded preschool program and making sure the troubled Department of Child Services can keep hundreds of new caseworkers.

Johnston said such spending plans would represent ongoing expenses rather than the one-time outlays in Holcomb's construction project proposal. Johnston argued it would save up millions in annual interest costs over at least the next 20 years.

New firearms laws for Hoosiers effective this month

By WHITNEY DOWNARD
CNHI Statehouse Reporter

INDIANAPOLIS — Gun rights advocates celebrated the passage of House Bill 1284, which adds a protection for Hoosiers from legal action following a justified use of force.

The bill also addresses several other issues related to firearms.

New legislation signed into law by Gov. Eric Holcomb takes effect this month.

"The initial purpose of (House Bill 1284) was to protect Hoosiers' rights to protect themselves and not be bankrupted after a justified use of force," Rep. Jim Lucas said.

Lucas, a Republican from Seymour who introduced the bill, described an instance when a woman shot her firearm to protect a police officer, killing a man stopped by law enforcement. The deceased man's family filed a wrongful death suit, and attorneys pressured the woman to settle in the case, according to Lucas.

"I drafted legislation to prevent this from happening to any other Hoosier in the future," he said. "I want to stress the use of justified force. Some have said this allows for someone to shoot on sight ... nothing could be further from the truth."

Lucas said that the bill would also allow Hoosiers to carry firearms in churches and religiously affiliated schools.

In next year's General Assembly, as he has in past years, Lucas said, he will introduce a bill to allow teachers to arm themselves at school.

"It's unconstitutional that we make people defenseless against people that aren't prohibited by laws," he explained. "We have, in this society, disarmed those in the best place to do anything during a school shooting."

Lucas said such a law would require teachers to have the same level of training as police officers, 40 hours, with training focused on school-based active shooter situations. This action could save schools money for retaining resource officers, the state representative said.

During the process of drafting the bill, Rep. Ben Smaltz, R-Auburn, requested increasing the state's four-year handgun license to five years, Lucas said. The bill also allows for law enforcement agencies to serve as locations for voter registration.

OTHER PUBLIC SAFETY LAWS

Three other new laws fall under public safety for Hoosiers, including bills criminalizing "revenge porn," allowing for protective orders from harassment and creating protections for children from sexual predators.

The sharing of an explicit photo without the permission of the subject will now be prohibited as a Class A misdemeanor under Senate Bill 243. The law defines the distribution of "nonconsensual pornography" as sharing an intimate image without consent and includes sharing those photos on the Internet. For subsequent offenses, the penalty increases to a Level 6 felony.

Previously, Indiana law permitted protection orders only after a violent assault. Hoosiers can now seek court-ordered protection from harassers under House Bill 1607, and courts can specify terms and conditions for the offender.

Young Hoosiers will have new protections from child predators under Senate Bill 551. Parents may now file for protection on behalf of their children against someone engaging in sexual grooming activity. The law also stipulates that children under the age of 16 may have comfort items or comfort animals while testifying in any hearing in any criminal matter.

The law prohibits the Indiana Department of Child Services from disclosing records related to ongoing investigations or criminal prosecutions. It also expands the list of offenses that may be prosecuted before a victim turns 31, including child molesting, child solicitation, child seduction and incest.

6-month report shows mixed results for Northwest Indiana casinos

By KAREN CAFFARINI
(Merrillville) Post-Tribune

Northwest Indiana's five casinos held steady in June, with total year-over-year revenues dipping about 1 percent and three of the casinos showing modest gains.

Year-to-date, the casinos' revenues dropped 3.6% compared to the first six months of last year, an improvement over the first quarter's performance, when revenues suffered as a result of a bitter cold beginning to the year.

"We had a dreadful January due to the Polar Vortex by the lake," said Dan Nita, regional president for Caesars Entertainment and general manager of Horseshoe Hammond.

Meanwhile, Horseshoe Hammond, on the heels of a good month, is moving forward with carving out a 5,300-square-foot area on its casino floor for sports betting, with plans of providing the new offering recently approved by the state Legislature in September.

He said the sports betting area will be located at the base of the escalator leading up to The Venue, which is now undergoing a renovation.

Regarding revenue, the region's five casinos took in $75.48 million in June compared to $76.04 million during the same month last year, according to the monthly revenue report issued Thursday by the Indiana Gaming Commission.

Blue Chip Casino in Michigan City, Horseshoe Hammond and Majestic Star II Casino in Gary each saw slight increases in revenues, while Ameristar Casino in East Chicago and Majestic Star I Casino in Gary had revenue drops.

Blue Chip took in $12.96 million in revenues last month, a 2.4% climb from $12.66 million the previous June; Horseshoe Hammond raked in $32.42 million in revenues, 1.3% more than the previous June's $32 million; and Majestic Star II brought in $5.06 million in revenues compared to $5.01 million, a 1% bump.

On the negative side, Ameristar raked in $18.05 million in revenues, a 4.8% drop from the previous June's $18.95 million, and Majestic Star I took in $6.99 million compared to $7.42 million, a 5.8% decline.

As for any possible changes to the Hammond casino as a result of Eldorado Resorts' announcement last month that it will buy Caesars Entertainment for $8.58 billion, Nita said it's too early to speculate.

Eldorado Resorts is based in Reno, Nev.

Madison man arrested in breaking of Main Street windows

COURIER STAFF REPORT

A Madison man has been arrested on charges of public intoxication and three counts of criminal mischief in connection with the smashing of several windows Sunday in the 800 block of West Main Street.

Tyler W. Dukes, 31, is charged with breaking windows at Liberty Screen Printing, Madison Apothecary and Madison Vintage Shop at about 11:22 p.m.

Madison Police Officer James Lee was responding to a dispatch when he observed a man yelling at Dukes. Lee instructed Dukes to walk toward his patrol vehicle and Dukes complied. Lee said he then asked Dukes if he had broken the windows and Dukes confirmed that he had.

Lee then spoke to the other man, who told the officer that he was on his way to work when he noticed the man identified as Dukes slamming a book bag against windows at Liberty Screen Printing. He started yelling at Dukes to stop but instead Dukes continued on down Main Street breaking windows at Madison Apothecary and Madison Vintage Shop.

1-65 motorcycle fire ends in arrest with drug and firearms charges

COURIER STAFF REPORT

Indiana State Police arrested a Marion County man Wednesday, July 10, after responding about 7:45 a.m. to a motorcycle fire on I-65.

The investigation by Trooper Andrew Garrett determined that Jerry Ray Jones, 36, was operating a Suzuki motorcycle southbound on I-65 near the 51-mile marker when the motorcycle became disabled. Jones pulled the motorcycle into the I-65 southbound scales and began to work on it. At some point, the motorcycle caught fire. Troopers quickly arrived on scene and did not find Jones. Workers in the area told the troopers that Jones had begun walking westbound across a field.

Trooper Seth Davidson and Garrett soon found Jones on County Road 1000 East, just north of Seymour. Jones was determined to be wanted on a warrant for possession of a syringe and an additional warrant for a parole violation. During a search of the bag he was carrying, troopers found a loaded handgun, about 120 grams of suspected methamphetamine, suspected Xanax, syringes, and about $1,600 in cash.

Jones was arrested on felony charges of dealing methamphetamine, possession of methamphetamine, possession of a firearm by a felon, possession of a controlled substance, and possession of a syringe. He was also charged with driving while suspended. Jones was taken to the Jackson County Jail where he was held pending his initial court appearance in the Jackson County Circuit Court.

Trooper Garrett was assisted by Troopers Seth Davidson and Randel Miller, Indiana State Police-Versailles Post, and officers with the Seymour Police Department. Redding Township Fire Department responded and extinguished the fire.

Hanover man arrested on drug, firearms charges

COURIER STAFF REPORT

A Monday morning traffic stop in Madison has led to the arrest of a Hanover man on charges related to possession of drugs, paraphernalia and a loaded firearm seized during a search of his vehicle.

Madison Police Officer Brittany Tate originally stopped the vehicle at 9:02 a.m. Monday for exceeding the speed limit while traveling east on Clifty Drive. Upon checking the vehicle she determined that the driver, Thomas Earl Dizney, 44, Hanover, was driving while his license privileges were on indefinite suspension. While issuing Dizney a citation for that charge from her patrol car she said she observed him reaching toward the center console of the vehicle several times and became concerned for her safety.

Upon returning to Dizney's vehicle, a white minivan, Tate asked him to contact a licensed driver to take possession of the vehicle rather than her have it towed. She also asked for consent to search the minivan due to her "growing concern" that he might have retrieved or placed something in the mini van. At that point, Tate said Dizney reached for a red plastic cup containing two glass smoking pipes with burn residue and a clear plastic organizer containing multiple razor blades, cotton swabs and a glass pipe that field tested for methamphetamine.

Tate said she then asked Dizney if there were any weapons in the vehicle and he reached down into the driver's door noting he "hoped she removed the firearm" from the van. Tate told Dizney to exit the vehicle and found a pocketknife during a pat-down but no other weapon on his person.

However, Tate later observed a loaded magazine in the driver's door pocket and Officer Chad Wehner, now assisting Tate on the stop, asked Dizney where a firearm would likely be if there was one in the vehicle. Dizney told Wehner to look under the front passenger seat and that is where Wehner recovered a loaded 45-caliber Kimber pistol in a soft holster with a full magazine and one shell in the chamber.

Tate placed Dizney in handcuffs and continued the vehicle search and retrieved the items Dizney had reported to her earlier.

Dizney was put in the Jefferson County Jail on charges of possession of methamphetamine, a Level 5 felony; possession of a firearm without a permit, A class A misdemeanor; and possession of drug paraphernalia, a Class C misdemeanor. He was also cited for driving while suspended.

Kentucky man arrested in sex solicitation case

COURIER STAFF REPORT

A joint investigation by the Switzerland County Sheriff's Office and Vevay Police Department has netted yet another arrest for attempting to use online social media to solicit sex with a minor.

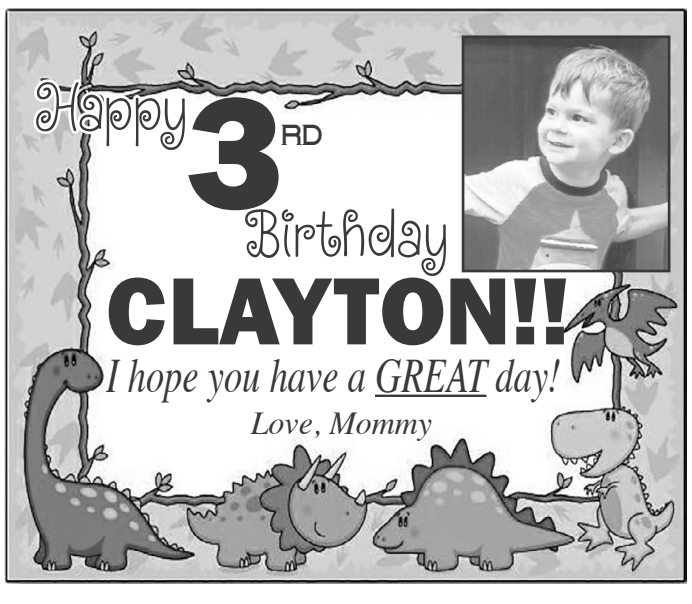
Ricky E. Collins, 56, Hebron, Kentucky, was arrested Monday by officers from the Switzerland County Sheriff's Office and Vevay Police Department.

Collins made an initial appearance in Switzerland Circuit Court Tuesday on charges of child solicitation, a Level 5 felony, and dissemination of matter harmful to a minor, a Level 6 felony.

Collins was charged as part of an ongoing joint investigation that has also led to the arrest of three others dating back to June 18 on similar charges.

Switzerland County Sheriff Brian L. Morton earlier said that his department and Vevay Police, like a lot of others, conduct ongoing computer crimes investigations to identify suspects seeking to contact underage individuals through social media for illegal purposes. The four arrests were all from that investigation.

Police had previously charged Jack D. Shelley, 48, of Madison, on two counts of child solicitation and two counts of dissemination of matter harmful to a minor; Harry L. Waller, 58, of Bennington, with attempted sexual misconduct with a minor and dissemination of matter harmful to a minor; and Brandon W. Mardis, 26, of Williamstown, Kentucky, with attempted sexual misconduct with a minor and dissemination of matter harmful to a minor.



Bedford residents can now keep more bees

By THE (Bedford) TIMES-MAIL

BEDFORD — Bees were a big part of the buzz during the Bedford City Council meeting Tuesday night.

Council members agreed 7-0 to update Bedford's animal ordinance to allow residents to keep more than one bee hive in the city limits under certain restrictions, according to Bedford Parks Department Director Barry Jeskewich.

The change was required to bring the city in compliance with a new state law that went into effect July 1, Jeskewich said in a phone interview Wednesday.

Jeskewich learned of the legislation while considering adding a new hive at Garden Park. With the help of the Bedford Beekeepers Association, the first colony was installed about two weeks ago to help pollinate the community garden, he said, which now has approximately 65 participants.

The existing ordinance allowing one hive or colony "on any premise" in the city dated back to 1957, Jeskewich said.

Among other things, the new ordinance allows one colony for every 4,100 square feet of property, two colonies for 4,100 to 8,000 square feet of property and six colonies for any property over 8,000 in agricultural and single family residential zoning districts

Several provisions are designed to help protect neighbors who aren't keeping bees, he said.

For example, they're also not allowed in front yards, he said, and beekeepers are required to register prior to April 1 of each year with the Indiana Department of Natural Resources.

They must also successfully complete Indiana Bee School held by The Beekeepers of Indiana.

Debbie Seib, treasurer The Beekeepers of Indiana, said the school is a one-day event held on the last Saturday in Feb. at Decatur Central High School in Indianapolis. The training goes from 7:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. and between 1,000 to 1,200 beekeepers attend from all over the region — not just Indiana, Seib said.

The school isn't just about biology of the the hive, but "how to be a good beekeeping neighbor," Seib said. What's caused problems in the past: "Too many hives on a postage-sized stamped lot — and someone gets stung," she said.

'Lonnie Mason is an extension educator's educator'

By Tom J. Bechman
Indiana Prairie Farmer

When Fred Whitford writes the history of Purdue University Extension over the past 50 years, he could lead off the book with a picture of Lonnie Mason. Whitford, director of Purdue Pesticide Programs, has documented the history of Extension through the first several decades.

He couldn't pick a better individual to represent Purdue Extension over the most recent five decades than Mason.

Currently Jefferson County Extension ag educator, Mason has served in the Extension system since 1969. He's helped more than two generations of farmers and their families learn about farming, leadership, life and growing up, in general.

Mason was named the 2017 Honorary Master Farmer. The award is sponsored by Indiana Prairie Farmer and the Purdue University College of Agriculture. Mason is the first career county Extension educator to be named an Honorary Master Farmer.

Mason has spent the bulk of his career in Jefferson County. He's worked with both farmers and 4-Hers. Currently, he's an ag educator, but also assists with the 4-H program, especially with livestock projects.

Early in Mason's career, many farmers in southeast Indiana raised tobacco. "That gave me the opportunity to connect with lots of farmers," he says. "At certain times of the year, you could count on finding them in the tobacco patch or in the barn stripping tobacco.

"They would ask questions and I would find answers, but the neat part was I knew I could always find farmers to talk to. It's when I made many of my visits."

If he wasn't visiting tobacco barns, he was likely making calls in dairy barns. "We also had a good number of dairies," Mason recalls. "I knew they would be milking cows morning and evening. If I wanted to catch up with someone, I knew I could find them."

Mason, an Extension agent and educator in every sense of the word, became a good listener through these visits. People looked forward to seeing him because they knew he was there to help in anyway he could.

"It's different today," Mason adds. "We've only got a handful of tobacco growers left, but each one grows much more than the typical grower did 20 to 30 years ago. We also only have a few dairies left in the county."

What hasn't changed is Mason's dedication to Extension and his community. "I've stayed with it because I have a passion for Extension and agriculture," he says. "But when I can no longer do the job like I think it should be done, I will step aside."

Mason has been a fixture in the Indiana State Fair swine barn for decades. He's helped the 4-H swine shows run smoothly. He will likely be at the Indiana State Fair this year, but he won't be working with the hogs.

"I physically can't do it like I once did, so it was time to give it up," he says.

But if you've got a question related to farming or agriculture, Mason will still find an answer. Helping ag people is something he never grows tired of, he notes.

2019 has been canceled. Upon having a meeting held with the City of Madison, IN on Monday, July 8th, we were presented with some information regarding the location we chose, resulting in us not being able to use the property.

"This comes as a shock and sadness to us here at KAD Entertainment, and we humbly apologize to all of the bands, fans, and all who has spent many hours making this happen. You guys are awesome, and we appreciate all of your support! We will be working hard at making it up to you all, in hopes to rock on at KADFEST in the very near future. We will update you as soon as we can on any future events."

At the core of the board's decision is whether the event actually fits into any of the city's categories for conditional use at the proposed property zoned RA (residential/agriculture). Depending on how the board opts to categorize the festival, the request could be denied before other issues are even considered. The city has usage authority over the area because it is within Madison's two-mile planning and zoning buffer.

Residential Agriculture allows conditional use for "cultural activities" but not "entertainment" and board member Scott Baldwin said that depending on whether the board decides the event is a cultural activity, as the organizers have proposed, or entertainment, as might also be considered, the request "could be all over" before any further consideration.

Even if the event is deemed a cultural activity, the board would still have to consider whether the festival's organization plan is conceived well enough to provide for the safety of those in attendance and the neighboring property owners and residents. That would involve not only city and state permits but health department inspections for food vendors and sanitation and an emergency plan.

Organizers went through no such procedures last year due to the impromptu nature of the event's relocation to Madison. In fact, permits were not obtained and neighbors didn't know about the festival until they saw increased traffic and heard loud music into the night.

"Last year we had 36 hours to put it together because the original site got canceled or we would have come here and done it the right way then. That's why we're doing this today," said organizer Jason Abbott. "We were not aware of the ordinance and went through the state permit and thought that was all we needed this year but then learned otherwise. We're here trying to do it the legal way and not throw that to the wayside like last year."

About a dozen neighbors as well as two firefighters and two law enforcement officers spoke at Monday night's meeting to express their concerns not just about the proposed event but, perhaps more specifically, about other events that have been staged or planned at the property owned by Susan L. Smith at 2355 North K Road, Madison.

Although the speakers actually had few complaints about KADFEST 2018 — mainly loud music, traffic and a public address announcer's proclivity for profanity — complaints related to other events at the farm included drunkenness, loud music, unsafe operation of trucks and ATV's, uncontrolled fires, gunfire and individuals who were confrontational to firefighters and police responding to calls at the property.

Several of the speakers said the property has become hard to live near for all of those reasons and they're concerned that KADFEST 2019 and other events planned at the property — more specifically a Redneck Rave Redemption scheduled for Aug. 1-4 that is unrelated to KADFEST's organizers — are indications that the property owner intends to stage more events, further burdening narrow. rural K Road, the peace and quite of the area, emergency services in the area and the defined residential/agriculture usage of the property.

Several of the speakers noted that what is zoned as a farm and home is becoming a business where live concerts, ATV trail riding and racing and camping are marketed for profit. Organizer's of both KADFEST 2019 and Redneck Rave plan to sell tickets and the Redneck Rave Facebook page indicated that up to 1,700 people plan to attend with tickets ranging from $40-$100.

Smith said she has leased use of the property to KADFEST 2019 just as she allowed the group to use it last year and Redneck Rave Redemption is merely a birthday party for her kids that became overgrown. She said tickets will not be sold for that event but that donations will be accepted.

Courtney said regardless of whether tickets are sold or donations collected, Smith should understand that the City of Madison looks at the Redneck Rave with the same scrutiny as KADFEST and the conditional use process could not be completed by the August date.

"We would not expect that event to occur unless it goes through the same process" as KADFEST, said Courtney. "If it's a birthday party — a small family gathering — then certainly that's not in the purview of needing any type of zoning or state fire marshal permit, but if this is a promoted event, I want to be very, very clear, it's not permitted. You're not following the process and since the question came up earlier I'll go ahead and put this out for public record."

where he worked for Miller Pipeline and as a pilot of a small plane herding cattle for huge Texas ranches.

"He liked Harleys but was disabled when he was in a bike accident," Kirch said of her friend. "He was a very interesting guy but he could also be curt. He was never married and didn't have any children."

Kirch said Miller had hoped to be buried at Crown Hill Cemetery in Greenscastle and thought he had prearranged and paid for those services but after his death it was discovered that he had purchased a vault and a grave plot but that another $6,000 would be needed to complete arrangements. She said that is what has delayed his burial since May as other arrangements were made.

Morgan-Nay Funeral Centre in Madison is assisting with some of that expense. The funeral home will transport Miller's body to the cemetery and provide a casket. A post on the funeral home Facebook page said you don't have to know Miller personally to appreciate the sacrifices he's made for his country and that such service should never be forgotten.

"We know his name but that detail really lacks significance. Although the nursing home where the 62-year-old resided put food on his table and provided a roof over his head, society could not provide the one essential link the Specialist 4 soldier desperately needed. The love and support of family," the post said. "The nursing home only knows of one relative and that individual distances himself from any involvement or bonding.

"A U.S. Army soldier who served during the Vietnam Era, the individual qualifies for burial and military protocol at the Indiana Veterans Memorial Cemetery here in Madison. And according to Director Alan Burnham, that certainly will happen this coming Tuesday, July 16 at 1 p.m. at the cemetery chapel," the post continued. "Both Mr. Burnham and Morgan & Nay Funeral Centre firmly believe that no veteran should be put to rest alone. Although our firm has donated a casket and traveled to Greencastle to pick him up, those are only materials things. A veteran's life commands more. Only his cohorts, regardless of branch or rank, know the realities and commitment of military service, with or without war. We thus issue an invitation to all veterans who can accommodate the Tuesday time frame, to please come and honor a comrade who like you sacrificed much for our country. We hope you can join us to create a spirit of family and a closure of dignity."

Kirch, who is dealing with Stage 4 cancer, said she and her boyfriend will make the trip down from Greencastle for Tuesday's service.

"There's nothing that could keep me away," she said.

Cubs' Hunter Ferris to pitch at Cincinnati Christian

CINCINNATI BOUND: Madison's Hunter Ferris drops down to sidearm to throw a pitch during the Post 9 baseball game at home on Wednesday. Ferris signed with Cincinnati Christian University before the game. (Staff photo by David Campbell)

From playing catch in the backyard to taking the mound at Gary O'Neal Field, Hunter Ferris' baseball journey has revolved around throwing a baseball. Now the 2019 Madison graduate has the opportunity to continue that journey at the next level.

Ferris officially announced his future plans on Wednesday afternoon at Madison Consolidated High School, signing his national letter of intent to play baseball at Cincinnati Christian University with family, coaches and administrators by his side. The former Cub heads to Ohio this fall and is anxious to continue his career as a student-athlete.

"I'm very excited," Ferris said after his signing. "Its been a dream of mine all my life to continue playing baseball at the college level. I want to continue to play baseball as long as I can and I really think the school and the team that I've picked will give me that chance to continue."

Cincinnati Christian, an NAIA school, has been a recent destination for student-athletes in the area in various sports but now includes a Madison athlete on its baseball roster for the first time. Ferris, who plans to continue on as a pitcher for the Eagles, says playing at a smaller school was an immediate attention-getter along with the potential for playing time right away.

Academics fit into the plan too. Ferris also noted that while the baseball program caught his eye, so did the school's business program, where he will be a business management major.

"They've got a great business program and there's plenty of opportunities the school offers with businesses in Cincinnati," Ferris noted. "On the baseball side the coaches really welcomed me in and they said I had the chance to come in from the start and pitch and maybe play some outfield. I like smaller schools with not as many students so I see all of this as a perfect fit."

Madison Post 9 claims 1st win

Although dealing with injuries at various times throughout his high school career, including an ACL injury two years ago, Ferris was able to make a comeback his senior year of high school, starring for a Cubs team that made it to the 3A sectional championship game this past season before losing to South Dearborn. Despite the loss, Ferris says that sectional will go down as one of his top memories while wearing a Cub uniform.

"Being able to finally get a sectional win after going without for so long is one of the bigger memories I have," Ferris said of his high school career. "We were able to make it to the championship game which is always a big accomplishment. Aside from that, I'd say winning the MCIT two years in a row also is one of the things I'll always remember."

Madison head coach Tim Armstrong said that while Ferris has helped lay the foundation for the resurgence of Cubs baseball, his best

18-year-old Tyler Ankrum races to 1st NASCAR win

SPARTA, Ky. (AP) — Tyler Ankrum took the lead when Brett Moffitt ran out of fuel with less than two laps to go and cruised to his first NASCAR Gander Outdoors Truck Series victory Thursday night at Kentucky Speedway.

The 18-year-old Ankrum finished 7.373 seconds ahead of Stewart Friesen on the 1.5-mile tri-oval to earn a spot in the eight-man series playoffs. Ankrum led a race-high 40 of the 150 laps in the No. 17 Toyota and gave DGR Crosley its first team victory.

"I think I was holding my breath for the last three laps there," said Ankrum, the California driver making his 12th series start. "Holy cow, that was awesome. ... I just don't know what to say. I cannot believe I just did this."

He won the NASCAR K&N Pro Series East Championship last season as a rookie.

"I can't believe it. This is a dream come true," Ankrum said. "One of my biggest faults is I've always doubted myself. Tonight, I kind of felt all that wash away."

Moffitt, the defending series champion and a two-time winner this year, ended up seventh — the last truck on the lead lap.

"All in all, we called a great race. We were just a lap short," Moffitt said. "It's tough. We had a good-sized lead there and a great handling truck."

Friesen started last in the 32-truck field NASCAR confiscated his primary No. 52 Chevrolet because of an issue with the rear firewall.

Harrison Burton was third, followed by Ross Chastain, Dylan Lupton and Austin Wayne Self.

Strong pitching, timely hitting lift young Niners to 1st win

By ROB LAFARY
Courier Staff Writer
sports@madisoncourier.com

Madison's young Post 9 squad surrendered a three-run lead in the top of the ninth but its youth at the bottom of the order quickly rallied in the bottom half of the frame in walk-off fashion to defeat Oldham County Post 39 (Ky.) 7-6 in Legion baseball action at Gary O'Neal Field on Wednesday night.

With only four hits through eight innings, Oldham's bats exploded in the top of the ninth to spark a rally. Brandon Hackworth led off the frame with a double and scored two batters later on a Daniel Murray groundball that was misplayed by the Madison infield.

Murray then scored with two outs on a throwing error after a single by Ryan Archer with Archer then tying the game 6-6 by coming around from second on Matt Teague's triple.

But keeping its heads held high, Post 9 responded in the bottom of the ninth and did all its damage with two outs on the scoreboard.

Facing extra innings, Keaton Rowlett hit a single and moved to second base when Gabe True ran safely to first on an Oldham throwing error. Madison then loaded the bases the next at-bat when Landon DeAtley was hit by a pitch, setting the stage for the win when Mike Barnes stepped to the plate.

Barnes, an incoming freshman at Madison, delivered. Batting from the nine spot in the order, Barnes immediately went to work, sending the first pitch he saw into right field for a single and scoring Rowlett for a 7-6 victory, the team's first of the American Legion summer season.

"Again it's a night where we play a lot of inexperienced guys but happy for them to go out and get a win," Post 9 head coach Tim Armstrong said. "I give Oldham credit, they've got some big boys and they hit the tar out of the ball in the last inning. But our young guys had no quit. You know a junior leads off for us in the ninth with a hit and then get a couple more guys on base then an incoming freshman comes up big for us. Overall I couldn't ask for more."

Madison never trailed in the game, finding ways to get runners on base throughout the evening. Two hits, three hit batters and an Oldham error resulted in a 3-0 lead in the bottom of the first inning including an RBI by Quinten Humes and an RBI single by Craig Demaree. Post 39 took advantage of two errors to cut the deficit to 3-2 in the top of the third but never challenged again until the ninth.

Post 9 scored a run in both the fifth and sixth innings on an RBI single by Humes, and Luke McCarty then added an insurance run in the bottom of the eighth when Barnes scored on a Drew Forner single after Oldham had trimmed the margin to 5-3 in the top of the seventh on a sacrifice fly by Teague that scored Murray.

Rowlett, Demaree and Barnes each had two hits with Barnes adding a run and an RBI. Rowlett scored a run and Demaree added an RBI. All but two players in the Madison lineup finished the night with at least one hit in the game.

"It didn't matter how we got it done, we just found ways to get runners on base," Armstrong said. "Our guys just went out and played the game. That's always our goal and if we do that then everything will fall into place. We had guys throughout the lineup step in at some key spots to help us along the way."

But as timely as the offense was, Madison's pitching kept Post 39 at-bay up until the rally in the ninth inning. Three Post 9 pitchers combined to allow just seven hits including Southwestern graduate Bailey Elliott, who picked up the win in relief by tossing the game's final three innings and allowing three runs — two earned — on four hits while striking out two.

Recent Madison graduate Hunter Ferris started the game and was brilliant through four innings of work, allowing two runs — one earned — on just two hits while striking out three and walking two. Drew Forner relieved and pitched two innings, allowing an earned run on just one hit.

"Drew (Forner) is another kid that is an incoming freshman and I thought he was a bulldog tonight," Armstrong noted. "Once we develop an offspeed pitch for him he's going to be very good. Tonight is as well as I've seen Hunter (Ferris) pitch in a few weeks and he did his job tremendously. Then of course Bailey coming in and finishing the game for us was big. He threw his game and did it well."

Teague went 2-for-2 with a double and an RBI to lead Oldham. Post 39's bottom of the order was held to a combined 3-for-11 in the game with its first six batters in the lineup held hitless until the seventh inning.

Cooper Gordon was dealt the loss on the mound after appearing in the ninth inning and allowing the game-winning run on two hits with one strikeout.

days are still ahead of him. That potential showed following his signing on Wednesday. Ferris pitched four strong innings in American Legion baseball action for Armstrong and Madison Post 9, allowing just two hits against Oldham County (Ky.) Post 39 in a 7-6 victory.

"Hunter is a special kid," Armstrong said of his hurler. "I get a little bit emotional because I had him all three years that I've been back here at Madison. He wants to play the game and loves the game. He's actually young for his class so I think the room is there to tap into some potential we haven't seen yet. I told that to several colleges who came in and looked at him. I'm extremely proud of him and the way he has battled back to get to this point."

Armstrong noted that some of that room for potential could gain traction once Ferris steps into the weight room and the future Eagle expressed the same sentiment. A conditioning program and nutrition program at the college level should add some weight to Ferris's lanky, but developing frame, along with building more power in his pitching arm.

"I need to start lifting weights more," Ferris admitted. "Obviously the competition level gets better so I need to be stronger and faster. It's going to be a process that I will have to work at daily."

"If we can just get him into a body," Armstrong said. "He gets in on the nutrition and weight programs and I think you've got a late bloomer in the game and I told colleges that early on. Get a caboose on him and get him stronger and his potential will be unlimited."

Cincinnati Christian, coached by John Taylor, finished 13-39 in 2019. The Eagles open the 2020 season on Jan. 31 at Piedmont International.

It's a Fair day for animals

Competition for the cat show was purrfect!

Courier staff report

The Jefferson County 4-H Fair Cat Show brought together 16 cats and their owners to be judged based on criteria such as grooming and on answering cat-related questions and much more. Participants were separated into four groups based on the breed of cat, house cat (short-hair), house cat (long-hair), pure breed or barn cat. Each cat was taken to the judge, who looked over the feline while asking questions of the owner about how the cat is cared for and other cat-related issues, such as how often a cat should be fed and diseases cats can get. The grand champion was Isaak Bachmann (top, right) with his short-hair house cat and the reserve grand champion was Caroline Bachman (lower, left) with her purebreed cat. BRIDGE

HE WAS WELL-KNOWN IN AND ON FIELDS

Last Saturday's column featured a deal in which John Collings made seven hearts doubled with a trump suit of A-J-9-8-6-4-3-2 opposite a void! (Three times, he led a winner from the dummy, righty ruffed low, and Collings overruffed. Then the heart ace dropped the queen and king.)

Today's crazy contract was declared by another good friend, Dennis Spooner. He started as a professional soccer player, but became much more famous as a great scriptwriter for television dramas like "The Avengers," "Jason King" and "Hart to Hart." These always included a bridge reference. Spooner died far too young at the age of 54 in 1986.

This deal was described in one of his Diary of a Palooka bridge articles. Look at the South hand. West deals and opens three clubs, your partner overcalls three spades, and East doubles for penalty. What would you do?

Probably you would pass and be pleasantly surprised when the contract made.

Spooner, who was playing with North for the first time and had noticed that she wore rose-tinted glasses, ran to four diamonds!

Oh, no -- North started thinking ... then raised to seven diamonds!

After East doubled, and West led spade queen, North tabled her hand, saying, "I must have the right cards for you." As you can see, she did. Spooner ruffed the spade lead, drew trumps with the aid of the winning finesse, and established dummy's spade suit.

East was unwise to double three spades. If he had passed, probably that would have been the final contract. But I don't suppose he anticipated his opponents' bidding and making a grand slam when he held two aces!

Balancing needs and limitations

Annie Lane

Dear Annie: My older brother is disabled. He was quite functional after he first had a stroke, but did not take care of himself. He wouldn't take his medications, ate unhealthy food, drank too much and watched TV all day.

As a result, he is now very disabled. Has difficulty walking, talking, falls a lot and cannot control his bodily functions. On top of that, he is stubborn and lies constantly. His kids and grandchild moved out because they were tired of dealing with him.

He is my brother and I am doing what I can to keep him out of a nursing home — paying for a caregiver, making sure his house is repaired and providing financial support. The problem is that it has become impossible for me to take him with me when I attend out-of-town family gatherings. He refuses to use a walker or wheelchair, which means it takes an extraordinary amount of time to get him places — to the point that we have missed events.

I have a great deal of trouble getting him in and out of the car. I am unable to pick him up when he falls. I just cannot bathe him or change his soiled clothes, that is way too much for a sister. My family all live in a rural area of the state and there are few resources for assistance. I cannot afford to pay for a caregiver to accompany us; I can barely afford his home care.

How do I tell him that I can no longer take him on away trips to visit family? I attended our nephew's graduation without telling him, and he found out. I am starting to feel really depressed about this. The rest of the family have tried to help, but gave up on him for their own sanity. I would be so grateful for any advice you have. — Drowning

Dear Drowning: More than 40% of caregivers have symptoms of depression, according to a report from the Family Caregiver Alliance. That's not surprising. The emotional and physical labor of caregiving can be incredibly draining and lead caregivers to neglect their own needs. I encourage you to make a therapy appointment today. You deserve support as much as your brother does.

Toward that end, be upfront with your brother. Tell him that you'll no longer be taking him on long trips, but that you'll continue offering him support in other ways that you can. Stating your limitations is not giving up on him; it's making it possible for you not to give up on him.

If you need more confidence that you're doing the right thing, try a thought experiment: If the tables were turned, what would you ask of him? What would you expect? Then you'll see that you've been more than patient with him, and he is asking more of you than is fair. Sweet sister, know that your big brother is lucky to have you, whether or not he's capable of recognizing that at the moment.
